This guidebook to the Tour du Mont Blanc circuit features in-depth route description and mapping for walking this classic route in either direction. A well-signed but demanding 105-mile (170km) trek, the Tour of Mont Blanc is a spectacular introduction to high-level mountain walking for walkers with good levels of fitness.

- Classic anti-clockwise route starts from Les Houches and is typically walked in 11 days.
- Stages range from 4.5-13 miles (7-21km) in length, but plentiful accommodation allows each day's walking to be shortened or extended
- Each stage includes a 1:100,000 route map, with urban maps for the major centres of Chamonix, Courmayeur, Les Contamines, Les Houches and Champex
- Includes higher level variant routes for walkers looking for a more challenging trek
- Route summary table, trek planning resources and accommodation listings help you plan your itinerary, while comprehensive notes on transport and a French-English glossary are also included
- GPX files available for download
- Companion map booklet containing official 1:25,000 IGN mapping available separately from Cicerone

About the author

A collaborative effort between Kev Reynolds and Jonathan and Lesley Williams who – following Kev's death in December 2021 – updated and refreshed the route details, planning resources and maps based on research trips in 2022 and 2023. Jonathan and Lesley are retiring from being Cicerone's publisher and marketing director (respectively), so have few excuses for not spending days in the hills.
